

Brno is a city offering friendly, cosmopolitan atmosphere, colourful festivities; it is a city entwined by grapevine and shaped by ancient wine-growing traditions. The Czech saying "small things are nice" holds true here. A quick tour of the historic centre takes only a few hours and you will still have some time left to explore interesting sights and exchange a few words with people you meet along the way. In short, falling in love and being fond of the city – bitterly, sweetly and forever – is not hard.

BRNO IS

- the second largest city in the Czech Republic with almost 400,000 inhabitants
- a centre of universities, science, research and innovation
- a city of interesting architecture, notably from the period of Functionalism
- a city of Villa Tugendhat, the only modern architecture landmark in the Czech Republic inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List
- a city that boasts two castles – Špilberk and Veveří
- a city of exhibitions and fairs; the exhibition centre was ceremonially opened in 1928
- a bishop's seat; the Brno Bishopric was founded in 1777
- a city where Gregor Johann Mendel (1822–1884), abbot of the Old Brno monastery, discovered the laws of modern genetics
- a city where the world-famous composer Leoš Janáček (1854–1928) lived and composed his music
- a city of records; the present-day Mahen Theatre was the very first theatre in Europe illuminated by Edison's light bulbs as early as 1882
- home to the tallest building in the Czech Republic (AZ Tower, 111 m)
- a place where you can admire the most peculiar clockwork in the Czech Republic (náměstí Svobody square)
- a city with the second largest ossuary in Europe located at St. James' Church
- a city where the cathedral bells on Petrov chime midday at 11 o'clock; this relates to a legend dating from the time of the Swedish siege during the Thirty Years' War
- a city of cafés, summer celebrations, festivals and fireworks
- venue of the World Motorcycle Championship and other important sports events

TOP DESTINATIONS

Villa Tugendhat

Černopólní 45 | www.tugendhat.eu

The Functionalist Villa of the Tugendhats with an untraditional lay-out and unique technological equipment, masterpiece of the architect Ludvig Mies van der Rohe from the 1930s, was inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List in 2001. The tour of the villa interior is in great demand and must be booked in advance; however, the garden may be visited without any previous arrangements.

Špilberk Castle

Špilberk 1 | www.spilberk.cz

The royal castle dating from the 13th century and rebuilt into a Baroque fortress in the 17th and 18th centuries used to be the most notorious prison in the entire Habsburg Monarchy and was known as the "Jail of Nations". It presently houses the Brno City Museum with permanent exhibitions dedicated to the history of the castle and of the city and occasional art exhibitions. The public can also visit the casemates – gloomy spaces in the bulwark originally designed as a shelter for soldiers and later used as a prison for felons. The castle is surrounded by a vast park giving views of the city.

The Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul

Petrov 1 | www.katedrala-petrov.cz

The original Romanesque basilica on the Petrov hillock rebuilt in the Gothic style. The Gothic Revival style modifications come from the beginning of the 20th century. Besides the Baroque interior of the cathedral, both towers and the crypt are open to the public. The cathedral along with Špilberk Castle create the characteristic skyline of the city of Brno. You can descend from Petrov along the upper terrace of the Capuchin gardens to the Denisovy sady park.

Old Town Hall

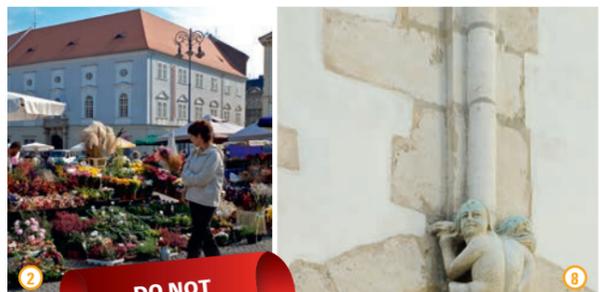

Radnická 8 | www.ticbrno.cz

The oldest and most interesting secular building in Brno, the seat of town councillors from mid-13th century. The council moved to the New Town Hall in Dominican Square as late as 1935. It features the legendary Gothic portal with a crooked turret and the passage „inhabited“ by the famous dragon, beloved and respected symbol of the city of Brno. You can also visit its tower with a look-out gallery, information centre and exhibition spaces.

Brno Underground

Zelný trh, Jakubské nám., Dominikánské nám. | www.ticbrno.cz

Three parts of the Brno underground that have been open to the public offer a look below the surface of roads and squares. The largest of them is the Labyrinth under Vegetable Market, historically the oldest public space in the city offering an interesting tour. You can also descend into the underground when visiting Mintmaster's Cellar in Dominican Square and the Ossuary under St. James' Church. This largest ossuary in the Czech Republic and the second largest in Europe holds the remains of more than 50 thousand deceased. The tour of the modern collectors, i.e. tunnels for utility lines, is quite an experience, too.

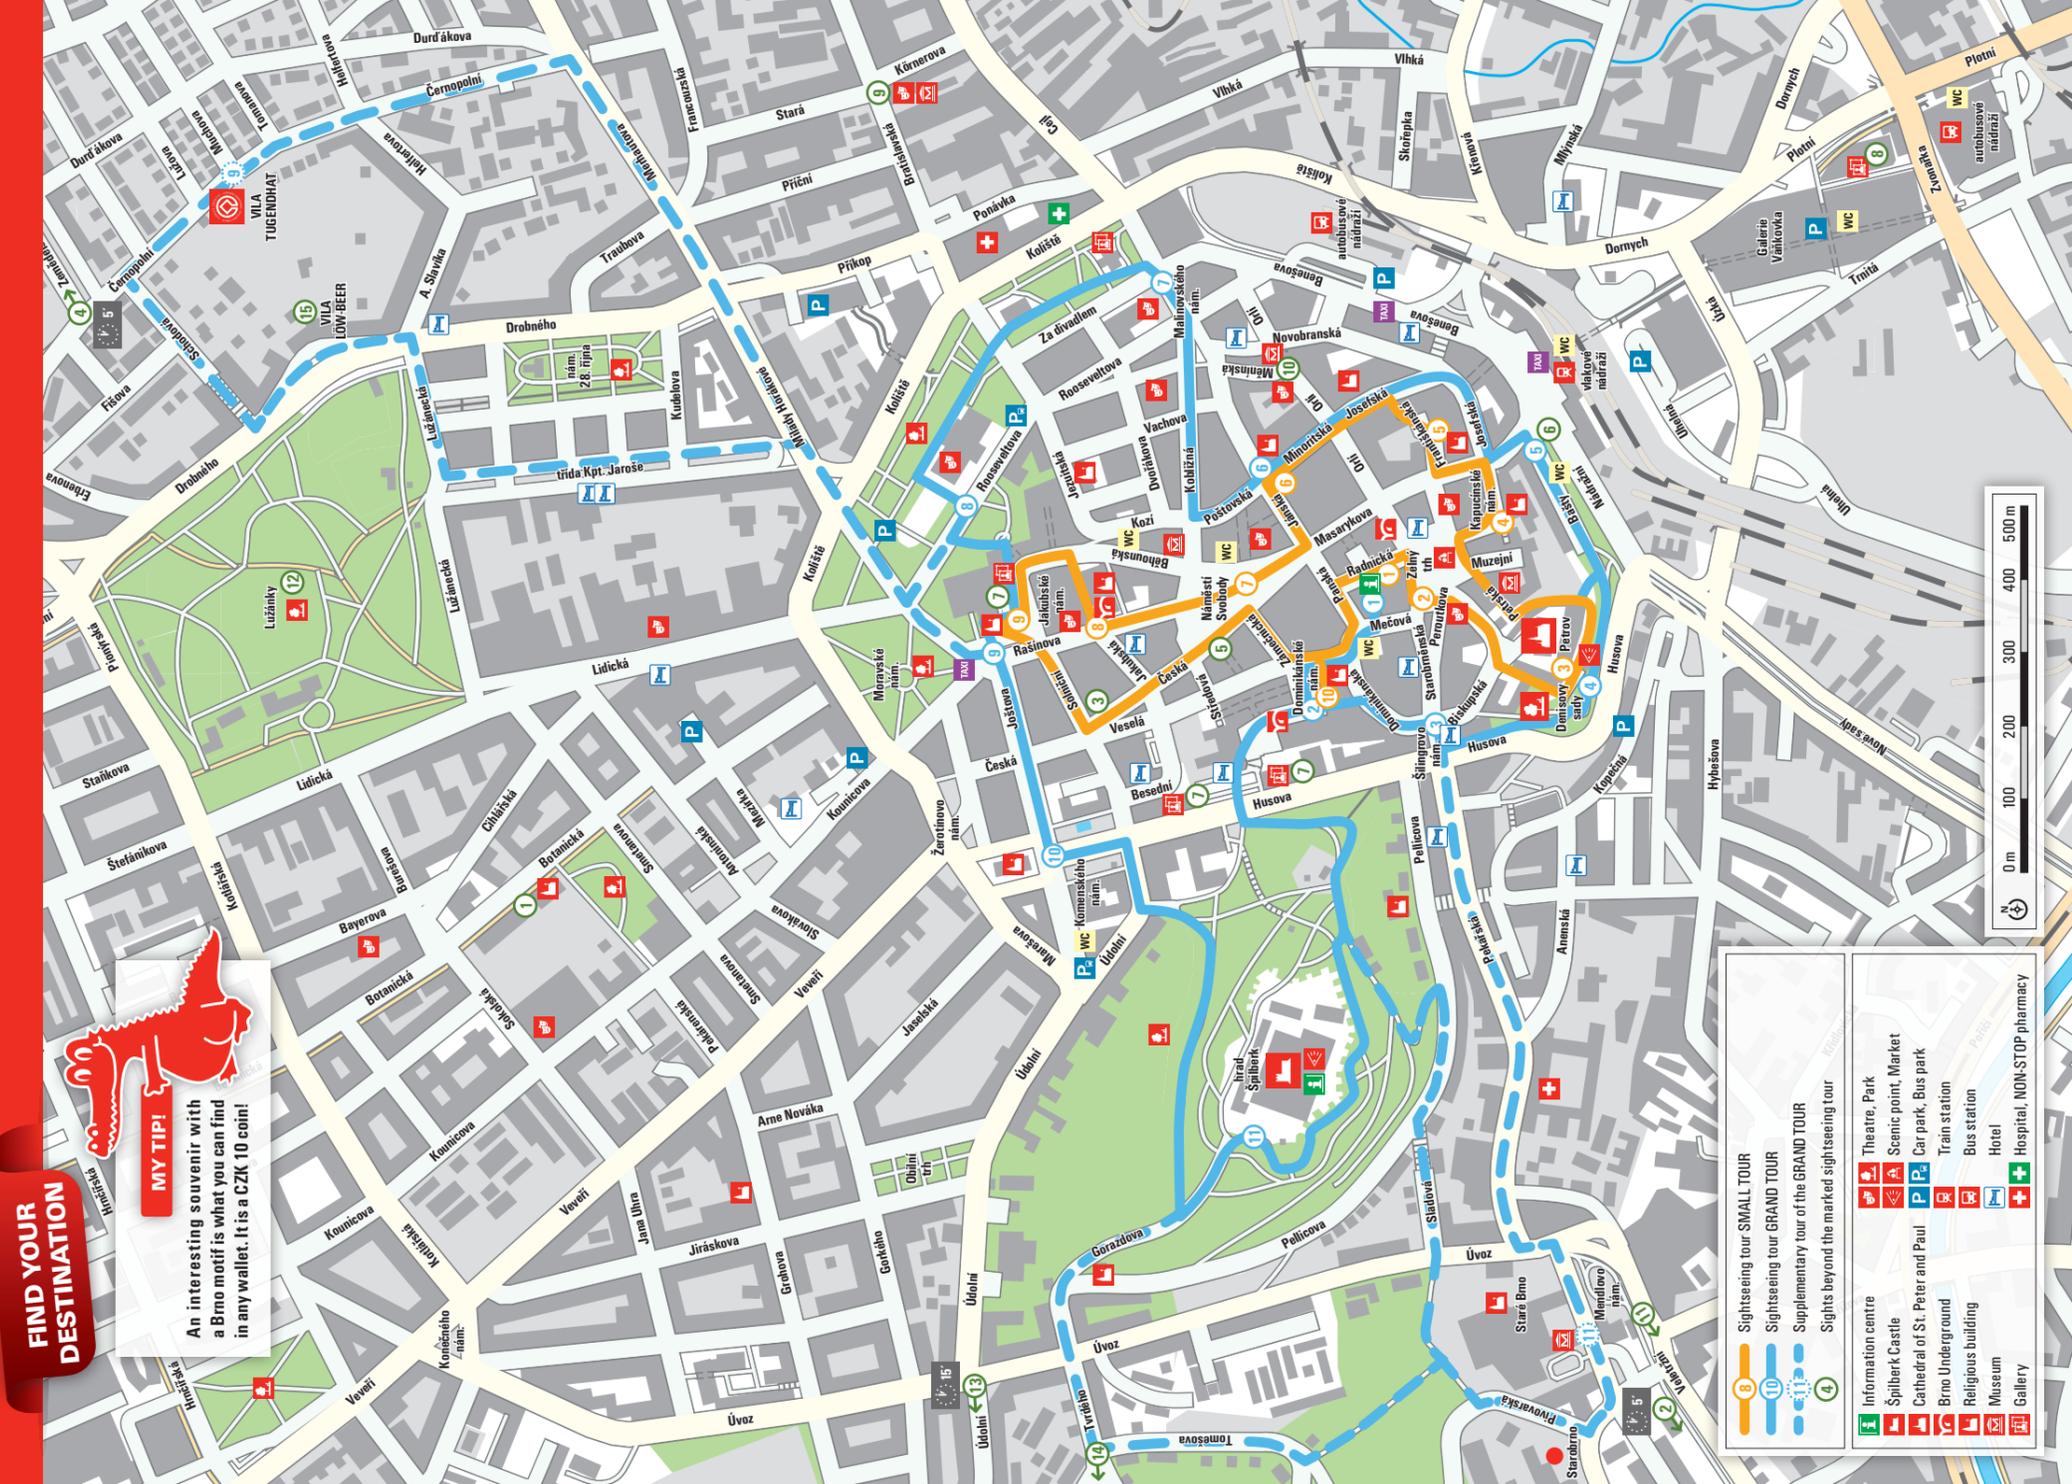

DO NOT MISS...

- The rumour has it that the stone master was not paid for the portal of the Old Town Hall and therefore he intentionally crooked the central turret in the portal.
- A small oddity of the High Gothic Style can also be found on the facade of St. James' Church – a little man positioned over the southern window of the church tower and sticking out his naked buttocks at the passers-by below.
- The Vegetable Market (Zelný trh) situated a stone's throw from the Old Town Hall has borne its name since the 15th century. Herbs, fresh fruit and vegetables, eggs, honey, spice and flowers are still sold there.
